

Cognitive Restructuring for OCD

Cognitive restructuring is a CBT technique that involves recognizing negative and unhelpful thoughts, examining the evidence for and against these thoughts, and developing more helpful alternative thoughts. For someone with OCD, cognitive restructuring can help challenge and change the intrusive and obsessive thoughts that contribute to anxiety and compulsive behaviors.

Cognitive Restructuring for OCD

THOUGHT

What you think in a situation.
Ex: "If I don't check the door multiple times, someone will break in."

EMOTION

How you feel.
Ex: Intense fear and worry about safety.

BEHAVIOR

How you act in the situation.
Ex: Repeatedly checking the door to ensure it's locked.

It's important to understand that our automatic thoughts affect our feelings and influence our behavior.

By critically evaluating the evidence for their obsessive thoughts and considering more balanced perspectives, individuals with OCD can reduce the intensity and frequency of their obsessions and compulsions, leading to improved mental well-being and daily functioning.

Thought:

Is my thought factual?

What evidence do I have for and against my thought?

What would someone else say about the situation?

Is it possible to view this situation differently?
