

How to Prevent Uncontrollable Crying

Experiencing uncontrollable crying can feel overwhelming and isolating, especially when it occurs unexpectedly or in situations where you wish you had more control over your emotions. This workbook is designed to help you gain a deeper understanding of what triggers these intense emotional responses and provide you with practical tools and strategies to prevent and manage them.

Inside, you'll find a collection of worksheets tailored to guide you through identifying your triggers, building emotional resilience, and developing personalized coping strategies. By working through these worksheets, you will learn how to take charge of your emotions and feel more grounded and in control during challenging times.

Here is a brief introduction to each worksheet included in this package:

Identifying Your Triggers

This worksheet helps you spot situations, thoughts, or feelings that lead to uncontrollable crying. By figuring out what sets off these emotions, you can make a plan to manage them better, helping you feel more in control of your feelings.

Self-Care Inventory

This worksheet helps you find ways to support your emotional well-being through self-care. It includes exercises to see where you might need more self-care, like physical health, relaxation, or social support. Focusing on self-care can help you feel more balanced and manage emotions more easily.

Setting Healthy Boundaries

This worksheet helps you learn to say "no" and set limits that protect your well-being. By identifying areas in your life where boundaries are needed, you can lower stress and create more balance. This worksheet guides you in finding situations where boundaries would help and provides steps to set them.

PLEASE Take Care of Yourself

This worksheet helps you check areas where your physical health affects your emotions and offers steps to improve your overall well-being. Taking care of these basic self-care needs can help you feel more stable, making it easier to handle difficult emotions.

Nervous System Regulation

This worksheet focuses on how stress and strong emotions affect your body and mind. It teaches simple ways to calm yourself, like breathing exercises, grounding techniques, or gentle movement. This worksheet gives you tools to feel calmer and more steady, so you can handle tough situations with less stress.

Understanding what triggers your uncontrollable crying is a crucial step toward managing it effectively. A trigger is any situation, event, or thought that initiates overwhelming emotions and leads to intense crying. These triggers can be external, such as specific places, people, or events, or internal, like certain thoughts, memories, or physical sensations.

Identifying your triggers involves paying close attention to the situations where you find yourself crying uncontrollably, along with the physical sensations, thoughts, and emotions that occur in these moments. By becoming aware of your unique triggers, you can anticipate and better prepare for them, reducing their impact on your daily life. This worksheet will guide you through the process of identifying and understanding your triggers, helping you develop strategies to manage and cope with them effectively.

PART 1: Identify Triggers

Think of a specific scenario that often triggers intense crying for you. Write down the details of that situation, then describe the physical sensations you notice, the thoughts that go through your mind, and the emotions you feel when it happens.

PART 2: Identify Patterns & Exploring the Impact

Look for patterns in the situations or thoughts that trigger your crying. Recognizing these patterns will help you anticipate when your crying might arise and prepare yourself to manage it more effectively.

Are there common themes or situations that trigger intense crying spells?

Are there any early warning signs or cues that help you recognize when you're being triggered?

Are there particular physical symptoms that you notice repeatedly?

How do your crying spells affect your behavior or decision-making?

What changes or adjustments could you make in your daily routine to reduce exposure to common triggers?

PART 3: Develop Coping Strategies

Learn coping strategies that can help you manage strong emotions in challenging situations. To learn more about coping skills you can use, scan the QR code below.

- Take some deep breaths. Try to inhale through your nose for a count of 4, hold your breath for a count of 7, and then exhale slowly through your mouth for a count of 8. Repeat 5 times.
- Ground yourself with the 5-4-3-2-1 method. Identify 5 things you can see, 4 things you can touch, 3 things you can hear, 2 things you can smell, and 1 thing you can taste.
- If you know you are going into a triggering environment, ask a supportive friend or family member to come with you.
- Treat yourself with the same kindness and understanding you would offer a friend.

- Keep a journal to document your intense crying episodes. Writing them down can help you analyze and understand their patterns and triggers, making it easier to manage them over time.
- Gradually tense and then relax different muscle groups in your body, from head to toe, to release physical tension and promote relaxation.
- Use positive affirmations to counter overwhelming thoughts and affirm your ability to handle challenges.
- Create a list of your strengths, skills, and past achievements. Review this list whenever overwhelming emotions come up to remind yourself of your abilities and successes.

Self-Care Inventory

Self-care is any technique that enhances your well-being and replenishes your mind and body. For example, practicing daily gratitude, laughing with a loved one, and taking daily walks can boost your mood and improve overall well-being. A self-care routine is not one-size-fits-all but requires experimenting with different strategies to understand what works best for you.

This worksheet is designed to help you explore a variety of specific self-care activities that can improve your well-being. You will be asked to rank each activity on a scale from 1-3 to determine how well you are currently engaging in these practices. After ranking, you can “star” the activities you would like to do more often. The goal of this worksheet is to help you recognize the different types of self-care available to you, identify what you are doing well, and pinpoint areas where you can improve to feel better overall.

Ranking

- 1 I rarely engage in this, and it is not a regular part of my routine.
- 2 I occasionally engage in this, but it is not consistent.
- 3 I regularly engage in this, and it is a frequent part of my routine.

How to Set Healthy Boundaries

This worksheet is designed to help you understand what triggers uncontrollable crying and develop strategies to manage these emotional responses. By identifying situations, thoughts, or feelings that lead to intense crying, you can gain better insight into your emotional needs and responses. Use this worksheet to explore your triggers, understand your emotional patterns, and create effective coping strategies to help you feel more in control and protect your well-being.

PART 1: Visualize Your Boundaries

Inside the circle, write everything that makes you feel relaxed and safe. On the outside of the circle, write down anything or anyone that makes you feel stressed, uncomfortable, or unsafe. These are people or situations that are pushing your boundaries and need further attention.

How to Set Healthy Boundaries

When filling out your inner and outer circle, here are some questions to consider:

- What is currently causing me stress or unease?
- What am I excited about each day?
- What do I find myself dreading each day?
- Who or what energizes and uplifts me?
- Who or what leaves me feeling drained and exhausted?
- Who or what helps me feel safe, supported, and valued?

PART 2: How to Communicate Your Boundaries

Here are some basic rules and examples for communicating your boundaries effectively.

Use Confident Body Language

Stand or sit up straight, maintain eye contact, and use firm but calm gestures to convey confidence and assertiveness.

Be Clear & Set Consequences

Be specific about what behavior you want to change and clearly state what will happen if your boundary is not respected.

Keep Your Tone Calm and Respectful:

Speak calmly and assertively, avoiding raised voices or aggressive tones to maintain a respectful atmosphere.

Practice Active Listening:

Listen to the other person's response without interrupting and acknowledge their perspective while staying firm on your boundary.

Physical Boundaries

- "Please give me some physical space"
- "I am not comfortable with being touched right now."
- "I need to step away for a moment."
- "I prefer to keep a bit of distance, thank you."
- "I would appreciate it if you didn't stand so close."

Emotional Boundaries

- "I feel overwhelmed and need to take a break from this conversation."
- "I'm not comfortable discussing this right now."
- "I appreciate your concern, but I need some time to process my feelings alone."
- "Please respect my feelings on this matter."

Interpersonal Boundaries

- "I feel uncomfortable with this behavior and need it to stop."
- "I need you to respect my decision."
- "I am not okay with how you spoke to me."
- "Please do not involve me in this situation."
- "I need clarity and honesty in our communication."

PART 3: Develop Strategies for Maintaining Boundaries (Example Page)

Use the following prompts to create a plan for reinforcing your boundaries consistently and effectively.

Situation:

Example: My sister, who lives nearby, frequently drops by unannounced. Her unexpected visits often disrupt my personal time and the quiet environment I need to relax and recharge after a long day of parenting. Last week, she came over right when I was about to start a long-awaited self-care routine, and it completely threw off my evening.

Boundary I will set:

I will have a conversation with my sister to let her know that I need my home to be a space where I can relax and unwind without unexpected interruptions. I will ask her to call or text me before coming over to ensure it's a good time. I will emphasize that I still want to spend time with her but need to plan our visits in advance.

Any potential challenges:

My sister might feel hurt or think that she is not welcome anymore. She may perceive my request as a sign that I don't enjoy her company or that our relationship is less important to me. Additionally, she might not understand why this change is necessary if she feels that her visits haven't been a problem in the past.

How I will handle these challenges:

During our conversation, I will explain to my sister that her visits are important to me and that I value our time together. I will let her know that my request for advance notice allows me to take care of my mental health and personal needs. I will suggest specific times that work better for me. For example, I could say, "I really enjoy our time together and want to make sure I am fully present when we hang out. Could you call or text me before coming over to make sure it's a good time? I usually have more free time on Saturdays or after 6 PM on weekdays."

The PLEASE skill in dialectal behavior therapy (DBT) is a simple acronym that helps you remember the basics of mental and physical well-being. This worksheet will guide you through applying the PLEASE skill to manage intense emotions that get in the way of feeling good.

PL

Treat Physical Illness

Make sure to look after your overall physical health by having regular check-ups, staying active, and following any medical advice. Taking care of your body helps keep your mind stable and healthy.

Balanced Eating

Try to eat regular, healthy meals. Good nutrition can help keep your mood steady and give you the energy you need, making you less likely to feel upset or stressed.

A

Avoid Mood-Altering Substances

Stay away from substances like alcohol and drugs that can affect your mood and thinking. Avoiding these helps you think clearly and manage your emotions better, which is important for your mental health.

S

Balanced Sleep

Getting enough sleep is very important for handling your emotions well. Try to keep a regular sleep schedule. Good sleep helps your mind work properly and keeps your emotions steady, reducing the chances of feeling moody or upset.

Exercise Daily

Exercise can lift your mood, reduce stress, and improve your overall emotional well-being. It also helps your body produce endorphins, which make you feel happier.

BALANCED SLEEP: Getting enough sleep is important to your mental health.

You should strive for 7 to 9 hours of sleep per night and establish good sleep habits to help regulate your mood.

With a sleep diary, you can log your bedtime, night awakenings, and morning wake-up times. This helps you see your sleep patterns and overall sleep duration, as well as how often your sleep is disrupted. Additionally, a sleep diary helps you track activities affecting your sleep. You'll note when you exercise, nap, take medication, or consume caffeine or alcohol.

INSTRUCTIONS: (1) Write the date and type of day: Work, School, or Day Off. (2) Put the letter "C" in the box when you have coffee, cola or tea. Put "M" when you take any medicine. Put "A" when you drink alcohol. Put "E" when you exercise. (3) Put a "B" in the box to show when you go to bed. Put a "Z" in the box that shows when you think you fell asleep. (4) Put a "Z" in all the boxes that show when you are asleep at night or when you take a nap during the day. (5) Leave boxes empty to show when you wake up at night and when you are awake during the day. SAMPLE ENTRY BELOW:

Nervous System Regulation

Nervous system dysregulation happens when your body becomes overwhelmed by chronic stress, emotional strain, or trauma, leaving it “stuck” in extremes, like high anxiety or feeling entirely shut down. These experiences can trigger racing thoughts, trouble sleeping, physical symptoms like a pounding heart or tense muscles, and even episodes of crying that feel uncontrollable.

Regulating your nervous system means learning ways to help your body feel calm and steady, even when under stress. This involves using tools to shift from states of high stress into a more balanced place where you feel grounded, secure, and emotionally steady. By learning to manage your nervous system, you’re equipping yourself with strategies to prevent overwhelming emotional reactions, like uncontrollable crying, and to build a foundation of emotional resilience.

This worksheet will guide you in recognizing how emotions show up as physical sensations in your body, like tension, a fluttering feeling, or heaviness. Identifying these sensations is the first step toward managing strong emotions, such as crying, more effectively. You’ll explore techniques to tune into your body’s signals and practice calming or soothing exercises. By the end, you’ll have practical tools to manage intense emotional moments in healthier, more controlled ways.

Here’s an example of how emotions might be experienced in the body:

Nervous System Regulation

PART 1: Scan Your Body for Sensations

Starting with your feet and working your way up, notice any physical sensations. These can be positive, neutral, or uncomfortable. There is no wrong answer. Just notice what you notice and write it down. Here's an example of how emotions might be experienced in the body.

Nervous System Regulation

One way to regulate your nervous system is by addressing the physical sensations that come up when you are feeling strong emotions. This could include changing your temperature, relaxing a muscle, or doing something that feels soothing.

PART 2: Regulating the Nervous System

Now, what to do about it? When you're feeling a difficult emotion, first notice what it feels like in your body then try one of these techniques. Notice how you feel afterward.

Nervous System Regulation

Daily self-care for the nervous system is important for being able to cope with physical and emotional responses to difficult situations. This means engaging in activities that help you feel centered, grounded, present and calm on a daily basis. Stress, illness and even the pressures of everyday life can dysregulate the nervous system, and these activities can help you move through your emotions in a healthy way.
